

Kingdee Group Invests in Dishuiquan Loan Project

Kingdee Founder and Board Chairman Xu Shaochun (EMBA 2002) has invested RMB4 million in CEIBS, on behalf of his company, to support the Dishuiquan Loan Project. This is just Xu's most recent effort to support the school's development.

"Studying at CEIBS was one of the best achievements of my life. At a critical period in Kingdee's development, I came to CEIBS to study and benefited a lot," he explained. Among the MBA 2019 students, about 30% are financially supported by the Dishuiquan Loan Project, more than a third earned scholarships from CEIBS Education Foundation (Xu is a founding member), and more than 20 students successfully applied for bank loans. ## CEIBS Education Foundation Releases Annual Report

According to the CEIBS Education Foundation Annual Report, sixteen classes, two alumni organisations as well as 1,453 students and alumni invested in the foundation last year. The report, released this August, makes publicly available – in both electronic and printed forms – the foundation's income and expenses, financial statements, investments, list of investors and other related data. It showcases the role that CEIBS students and alumni play in providing concrete support for teaching and research, the school's development, as well as helping to foster innovation and entrepreneurship.

CEIBS AMP Home, Making a Difference

For the first time ever, a CEIBS Alumni Chapter has collectively been given naming rights for a classroom. The CEIBS AMP Home classroom was officially unveiled on August 21. The project was co-initiated by the AMP Club and CEIBS Education Foundation. Its first phase is fully supported by AMP alumni companies including Semir, Septwolves, Shanghai Open Steel Joist Co, Ltd and Fuanna as well as the Volvo Group. As an open fundraising project, "CEIBS AMP Home" will work with more and more CEIBS AMP alumni to keep raising fund and provide an inexhaustible driving force for the school's development.
